YOUR GUIDE TO BUDRISING WEST

Welcome to the inaugural BudRising West – a three-day, three-city romp that bottles the best bits of this summer's BudRising events in the capital, sprinkles some new magic on them and hauls them west of the Shannon. One magic weekend of music from international stars, the next big things and local heroes – plus all the trimmings you could possibly want from the music festival for true music fans. For full details of the weekend log onto www.budrising.ie.

Strictly over 18's.

BUDRISING WEST NOVEMBER 17-19

DAVID HOLMES

It's quite a distance from Belfast to Hollywood, but it's one David Holmes is familiar with. From playing a pivotal role in Ireland's club scene to releasing techno trax on Warp to making filmic albums like 'Bow Down To The Exit Sign' to making albums for films like 'Ocean's 12', we salute the man they call Holmer and his record box of rare treats.

GROOVE ARMADA

They've probably soundtracked many a late-night session in your mate's gaff thanks to uber-hits like 'Superstyn' and 'I See You Baby', but there's always been depth and musicianship with this pair and their extended family. The weekend's DJ sets will see them showcasing their dancefloor edge on the ones and twos.

REPUBLIC OF LOOSE

Ever seen an Irish preacher bring an audience to their knees? And back up again? Ever heard Irish white boys play serious low down and dirty soul music? Ever been to a Republic of Loose gig? Well, here's your chance - and with their new joint, 'Comeback Girl', burning up daytime radio, now is the time to do it.

THE REDNECK MANIFESTO

The mighty manifesto continue to astound with their uncompromising instrumental rock. They are one of the finest live acts this country have - if you haven't seen them yet, now is the time.

THE ZUTONS

They describe themselves as a "modern soul band with angular guitars" - and while that's not the half of it, it kinda does sum them up. The Liverpoolian five-piece's Mercury-nominated 2004 debut, 'Who Killed The Zutons?' is essential - and live, they are a sax-totin', tight-funkin', soul-clappin' blast. Unmissable.

THE LEATHER GIRLS

Indie hits + plenty of glitz = rocking DJ sets from these trouble-makers.
